Summary

I have been eagerly curious at web development since my junior year at university Oguzhan, Turkmenistan. As of now i am a part time employee as a frontend developer in one of the companies of Turkmenistan. My job is to develop web pages in reactJS and nextJS. I have been working on various projects since i got hired, such as accounting and railways web applications. I think i have enough experience to develop any web application and can work as a team as well.

My goal from now on is to have experience with other teams around the world in my journey as a web developer.
